One day, the little piggy was feeling very sad. He didn't understand why the other animals were scared of him. He just wanted to be friends.

That night, the little piggy went to sleep in his bed. He was very lonely and wished that he had friends. Then he heard a noise outside his window and saw a little squirrel looking in. The little piggy told the little squirrel that he could help him find his way home.

The little piggy and the little squirrel set off together to find the little squirrel's home. They walked for a long time, and the little piggy started to get tired.

But the little squirrel stopped him. "Wait," he said. "I have something for you."

The little squirrel ran into his house and came back out with a big smile on his face. He was holding a little acorn.

"This is for you," he said. "It's a thank-you gift."
